» TGIH in the Neighborhood, 10/31

Thank goodness it's Halloween ... and there's no school on Friday!

Join your neighbors for a special Halloween TGIF with a movie for the kids, beverages for all and a spooky good time! The fun starts at 6624 W. Wells St. after dark on Thursday, October 31. Come in costume ... if you dare! ■

» It's Membership Renewal Time!

Watch your mailbox for your 2020 CJPNA renewal letter towards the end of October. We request your renewal in by December 1st so we can set our budgets for the next year of events. You can renew online at <https://www.tosacjpna.com/> or in person at La Tarte, 6742 W Wells St. ■

» Jacobus Park Winter Print Prize

At this year's Oktoberfest gathering, one lucky winner will head home with a framed copy of the Jacobus Park Winter print, valued at more than $250.00 and depicting a picturesque skating scene. Be sure to check the website to see who brought the work of art home! ■

CJPNA Updates

» Tailgate Brings out the Best in CJPNA

... the Brewers fall short, however

On a gorgeous summer night, the CJPNA crew assembled for a pre-game gathering accompanied by brats, beer and bubbly conversation. And, while the win went to the bad guys, our neighborhood swung for the fences and had a great night! ■

» CJPNA Begins New Chapter of Welcoming New Neighbors

By Gary Porter

The CJPNA Board has established an impactful initiative that reaches out to new residents in our neighborhood, and welcomes them to one of the most interesting, fun and inclusive neighborhoods in the city.

Board member Diane Porter connects with new neighbors by welcoming them with a CJPNA beer glass filled with coupons from area businesses, and a friendly "Hello."

Other CJPNA members are pitching in as well: Peter and Mary Skanavis are helpful in identifying our new neighbors and home buyers, and Steve Flewellen has been instrumental in contacting businesses for coupons and other donations.

Business contributions are welcomed, as well as names and addresses of new neighbors near you. Please contact any board member for more information.

We're glad to say "Welcome Aboard!" ■

» Playdate with our Senior Neighbors

Hart Park Square Senior Community is happy to host a craft and snack time for parents and their young children for a monthly playdate. The senior community will host the craft time, juice and cookies for you and your littles during the 45-minute visit. The playgroup will meet the 3rd Friday of each month starting in October from 10:30-11:15am. (Oct. 18, Nov. 15, and Dec. 20)

If you're interested in learning more or participating in one or more of the play sessions with your tot, please email casey.flew@gmail.com. ■

CJPNA Pool Party Turns 4 with Some Help from other NAs

Summer splashes were had by the dozen and a warm August evening when CJPNA, along with 12 other Wauwatosa neighborhoods, enjoyed a wonderful community pool party. More than 500 kids, parents, friends and neighbors attended ; the neighborhood associations participating included Fisher Woods, Glenview Heights, Historic heights, Inglewood, Lovers Lane Estates, Olde Hillcrest, Ravenswood, Sheraton Lawns, Swan Park, Tosa East Towne, Tosa Heights, and Wauwatosa Village.

This annual event will occur in 2020 for the fifth year in a row. Keep an eye on www.tosacjpna.com and like our Facebook page to participate next year in the 5th Annual Wauwatosa Family Neighborhood Association Pool Party! ■

Green Team Assemble!

Composting initiative underway at Jefferson Elementary

On August 1st, 290 attendees and 45-plus exhibitors gathered at the 4th Annual Green Schools Conference at Brown Street Academy and Alice's Garden in Milwaukee to share resources, experiences and inspiration in support of the Greener, Healthier Schools movement in the Milwaukee area.

Through breakout sessions, garden tours, and networking, the conference provided the opportunity to connect with other educators, community organizations and supporters of Green & Healthy Schools.

CJPNA member Mary Young attended the event, accompanied by Jefferson teachers Mrs. Kris Barrett, Mrs. Nicole Hintz attended to learn as much as they could about new sustainable initiatives that can be implemented right here in Wauwatosa.

As a result, the Jefferson PTA recently announced that the school will begin lunchroom composting and recycling as the school year kicks off. Compost Crusaders have begun educating the students and staff about how this student-led effort will work, and parents and students are encouraged to join the Green Team. ## 2019 CJPNA Scholarship Recipient to Study Nursing

Earlier this year, CJPNA awarded the 2019 Scholarship to Lily Manke, a recent graduate of Wauwatosa East High School. Here, she reflects upon what the Charles Jacobus Park neighborhood meant to her over the years, and shares her plans for the future.

Hi! My name is Lilly Manke. I will be attending Valparaiso University this upcoming August. I plan to study in the College of Nursing and Health Professions. I look forward to the rigorous course load that comes along with studying to become a nurse.

In High School I was a part of multiple clubs and sports. I participated in three sports including: the swim team, varsity basketball team, and the varsity soccer team. These sports allowed me to gain a sense of community, leadership, and determination. I also participated in a few school clubs including: National Honor Society, Link Crew. In addition, I participated in a class called American Public Policy Special Emphasis. This class prepared me for a college level class and allowed me to better understand our country's government. Along with school, I have been active at my church, helping with Vacation Bible School, going on Youth Mission Trips, and even teaching Sunday school.

I am honored to receive the Charles Jacobus Park Scholarship. This scholarship has given me the opportunity to grow both intellectually and personally. It allows me to further my education, which is something that I am proud to be doing. I am extremely excited to attend Valparaiso University and am extremely grateful for the opportunity that the Charles Jacobus Park community has given me. Thank you!

CJPNA awards an annual scholarship to a local high school senior. For more information or to contribute to the fund, please visit the CJPNA website. ☒

Helping Your Loved One Rediscover Purpose

This article is a reprint of a blog posted by Adele Lund, Laureate Group's Director of Community and Business Relations

Have you ever heard an older adult express the thought "I just want to die, I'm ready to go." At a recent talk I was giving, a daughter said that's what her mother has been saying. Her father passed away a year ago, her mother's health is compromised, and mom apparently feels she's had enough. It was clear the daughter was troubled by that statement. "Mom says she just wants to die, but she gets out a lot. My siblings and I take turns escorting her on shopping trips and doing other fun things. She's well taken care of. What am I supposed to do?" My response went something like this..."I have no doubt you take good care of her, and it's wonderful that the family is involved and willing to do what they can. Let me ask you this, was your mother the kind of person who did things for others in her younger years?" Of course the answer was yes. I then proceeded to share that as wonderful as it is for her mother to get out, and for the family to take such good care of her, she's still missing one big thing in her life...PURPOSE. They all have purpose in taking care of her. But I suspect she feels that she no longer has anything to contribute, that she has nothing to offer anyone anymore, that today it's all about others doing for her. Essentially her purpose has become "taking" instead of giving...and that's not something she, or most of her generation, is good at or comfortable with.

Physical care is different than mental and emotional care. In the midst of taking good care of your loved one, consider what contribution they can still make, what purpose they have that they may be overlooking. It doesn't have to be big, and certainly not strenuous. For the next family gathering could mom make that one dish that she was so well known for? Could she provide counsel or just a loving ear as you share a quandary you may have, maybe share her perspective on things for you to consider? She does know you well after all. Could she call a friend of hers who isn't getting around much anymore, just to talk so they have a conversation with someone today. When she offers to fuss a bit and make you something you used to love over the years, let her fuss. It's not about you needing her to do that, it's about her needing to do it. It's about her worth, about her contribution to you, the family and life. It's about looking for the things she can still do instead of always focusing on the things she no longer can.

Sometimes children are so considerate they end up limiting their parent's lives without realizing it. In the midst of wanting to show our love by caring for their every need, we may be robbing them of things that, no matter how small, gave them purpose. You know what I would love mom? You always made the most amazing apple pie, no one's ever come close to the pies you made. If I get the ingredients, would you allow me to join you to make a pie? Or if she's no longer capable, ask if she'd be willing to give you the recipe so you can make it, because the memories of her pie are so wonderful.

Instant worth...instant pride.

When's the last time someone asked for their opinion? And I don't mean simply being agreeable with what others have said. When's the last time something they did or said had a positive impact on others? Yes, they've given so much over the years to so many, and yes, all you need from her is her love. That may be enough for you, but may not be enough for them. I often tell clients who are considering assisted living in a Laureate Group community, that our philosophy is "we are there to help them help themselves." I then go on to explain that we are prepared and able to provide a lot of cares and services for our residents. But our goal is to support their independence, not take it away from them. What they can do for themselves, we encourage. And what they need assistance with, we support. We're there to assist their independence, and that can mean very different things to different people.

Take a new look at your loved one, talk with them about what's meaningful to them, what's hard to give up, and what is fulfilling to them. With some creative thinking you may just find that they're able to do more than you and they thought. It's at least worth a conversation. Help them rediscover PURPOSE! ☒

Wauwatosa Eagle Scout Says Thanks

From Isaiah Fraley, CIPNA Eagle Scout

Hello! I want to thank everyone who participated in my Eagle Project by donating your books! It has been amazing to see the enormous support from our community towards this cause. Thanks to you, we surpassed our fundraising goal of 500 books by a lot! The grand total of books donated was an incredible 3,000! I am so glad that the students of Messmer St. Rose will have all of these books surrounding and influencing them as they grow as students and citizens. Your help will have a tangible effect on the future of our country by encouraging superb literacy no matter where a child lives. Thanks again for helping this cause by donating to my project!

Sincerely,
Isaiah Fraley

LaTarte: Little Perk, Big Community Impact

By Peter Garofalo

"It's like a family."

That's what Liz Lefevre, owner of LaTarte "Little Perk" will tell you when asked what she likes most about having a business in the CJPN. And she would know.

Liz has been providing us with scrumptious "edibles for discriminating taste buds" at LaTarte for nearly 18 years, the last six as owner, operator and good neighbor. She loves seeing the regulars come through her doors, catching up on their lives and activities. Her door is full of postcards sending well wishes from friends and customers as they travel across the globe--Germany, China, Costa Rica, Bangkok to name a few. Wherever they travel, Liz says, she wants her patrons to feel right at home when they visit her cozy bakery.

She has also been a very good friend to our Neighborhood Association, serving as a drop off point for our members as they renew their membership or participate in our many neighborhood activities. It's also pretty nice to grab a tasty shnibble (that's 'little nibble' in bakery speak) while you are there!

Since her mid-teens, Liz knew she was destined for making good things to eat. From working at Gilles in high school to earning a culinary degree from Johnson Wales University in Rhode Island, to now making the best lemon squares in the city and the best biscotti this side of Florence, Italy, she strives to achieve best-bakery status. Her Sticky Fingers (croissant rolls with pecans, cinnamon, brown sugar and cream cheese frosting) are said to have a cult following. Sign me up!

And she certainly keeps busy! Not only is she baking for her retail customers at the storefront on Wells, Liz also supplies special seasonal cookies, muffins and rolls to Sendiks, Karl's Country Market, Valentine Coffee and Urban Joe's. You'll also find her and her baked goods at the Kenosha Farmers Market every Saturday and every other Sunday. Look for her at the Riverwest Farmers Market selling amazing loaves of freshly baked bread too.

Holidays are the busiest time of the year – especially around Thanksgiving when Liz and her team will bake over 130 Pumpkin, Pecan and Apple Pies for lucky recipients. Order early! She's looking for kitchen help this year, so if you are interested take a stroll over and talk with Liz. There's always hot coffee and a great biscotti waiting for you. ■
